FINE PICTURE COMING

In no picture has the effect of costume been better demonstrated than in 'Rosemary Climbs the Helghts," featuring Mary Miles Minter and shown at the local theatre on Friday, May 8th. Miss Minter enters the story in the simplest garb of the village girl and daughter of the struggling old father, a descendent of old and settled Holland stock. Because of Rosemary's tainent for carving clever dolls, she attracts the attention of a party of city artists in general, and a young and handsome composer in particular. She transported into the whiir of city life. In her attic, for costume ball, Miss Minter is said to wear one of the most elaborately made dresses ever shown on the screen... The lace is precious satin is of the kind we no longer can buy anywhere and has been treasured by Miss Minter's mother until just such an opportunity and the beadwork was designed by the great Poiret. "Rosemary's" costume is that of Juliet. Alan Forest, as "Ricardo," the composer and lover, gives a fine impersonation of Romeo. Miss Minter used to take Shakespearien parts in private theatricals and always had a leaning toward Juliet.

Henderson county gave 1,500 majority in favor of the 20 cent road tax.

IMPORTANT POINTS OF TO THE GERMANS TREATY HUNS WILL SIGN

tives of 27 Nations Present On Momentous Occasion at Paris

(By Associated Press)
Versailles, May 7—Germany today was told the terms upon which the allied and associated powers would make peace with her.

The terms are contained in the treaty of some 80,000 words in length which was handed to the Germany present of 27 nations.

(By Associated Press)
Paris, May 7—The peace treaty delivered to the Germans at Versailles today is the longest ever drawn. It provides that if the governments named agriculture assistance of France in case of an unprovoked attack by Germany. It does not deal with questions affecting Austria, Buigaria, and Turkey except insofar as binding Germany to accept any agreement reached with those former ailies.

Germany, by the terms of the treat accepts in the second of the treat accepts in the second of the treat accepts.

The terms are contained in the treaty of some 80,000 words in length which was handed to the German plenipotentiaries at a memorable assemblage here, attended by delegates of 27 nations which are parties to the peace pact.

The notable document on which the leading statesmen of the various nations have been working together with a swarm of experts from the principal countries involved since the convening of the peace conference, January 8th, it introduced by an extensive preamble, embodying the assertion of the authority upon which the treaty is based.

Immediately following the first chapter is the text of the League of Nations, the text of which has already been printed.

Of the fourteen principal sections, one contains stipulations with regard to frontiers which materially changes the map of Europe.

Rhine must be razed.

All importation, exportation and nearly all production of war material must be stopped.

Allied occupation of parts of Germany will continue until reparation is made but will be reduced at the end of each of the three five-year periods, if Germany fulfills her obligations.

Any violation by Germany of the conditions as to the zone east of the Rhine will be regarded as an act of war.

one contains stipulations with regard to frontiers which materially changes the map of Europe.

Military, naval and air terms are dealt with in another section, while still another is devoted to the subject of reparations.

Political stipulations for Europe on the one hand and outside of it on the one hand and outside of it on the other, are dealt with in separate divisions of the document.

The treaty, it is noted, has to do with Germany alone, except insofar as it is required that she accept the agreements made by the allies with the other Central Powers.

The terms of the treaty will spell the end of Germany as a military power. She is deprived of virtually all her fleet; her army is cut down to nominal dimensions and she is sharply restricted along lines through which she might seek to work militaryly to rehabilitate herself.

Economically, also, the future of Germany is hedged about with stipulations intended to insure her ability to pay the indemnity demanded by the allies, but to prevent her from exploiting her old-time resources as strangling competitor of the nations about her, which she overran and devastated during the war.

The game went off nlcely. Scrivner played a good game at short, while l'ittman and Holdcraft were playing second and third in their usual good form. TWO DIFFERENT VIEWS ON WEED PRODUCTION

(By Associated Press)
Louisville, Ky., May 7—Difference in opinion between Mat Cohen, state commissioner of agriculture, and the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, concerning tobacco production have been published in a University bulletin.

tucky, content that the content to t at a meeting of loose leaf warehousemen.

Europes immediate needs are 500,000-000 available for export, the University bulletin asserts, adding that even with the probability of increased acreage in North and South Carolina, Georgia and Kentucky the total percentage of increase in the world's crop will not be greatly affected.

Meanwhile tobacco growers are reported to be planting greatly increased acreage in Kentucky. Those in the Central part of the state, Commissioner Cohen declared, "are tobacco crazy". He said some farmers bad rented land at $200 an acre to grow tobacco. "With the cost of prodution now $150 an acre, "as compared with $80 to $85 a few years ago this would make the initial cost $350 an acre before a furrow is turned. Growers cannot hope to profit with tobacco at 20 cents a pound, which we fully expect, and the production 300 pounds an acre,"

On the other hand, the University bulletin expresses the belief that "taking into consideration on the abnormal conditions in the tobacco market, the outlook for next year's crop appears very favorable."
